

A Dozen Ways to Make The Most of Your Membership as a Freemason

1. Involve (or even organise) your spouse / partner and friends in various social activities with other Freemasons.
2. Identify a need in your community and work with your Lodge to design a project that addresses it.
3. Learn how to apply for a grant to the Freemason's Charity.
4. Visit other lodges – you are welcome to attend any meeting of a lodge through-out the world, provided it is meeting under a recognised Grand Lodge. (The exception might be if they are having a 'domestic' Meeting).
5. Volunteer for a new role in the Lodge. It need not be an officer's role - Lodges need help with many tasks i.e. Lodge newsletter, website, administration, social coordinator, prospects coordinator, education, building management.
6. Attend your Divisional Conference.
7. Attend the 3 yearly Grand Installation.
8. Identify other resources found in this Toolbox which interest you and introduce them to some other keen members – let them help you to communicate, collaborate and inspire the brethren in your Lodge.
9. Meet with other brethren who share your interests and passions through 'fraternal organisations' or sporting activities. i.e. bowls, golf, clay target shooting.
10. Connect on social media. The GLNZ has official pages on Facebook, LinkedIn & Twitter.
11. Get to know older brethren in your Lodge – perhaps assist them to write or record their biography.
12. Support the Freemasons Charity which contributes $xxxxxx per year to charitable activities.
